APPLIES ACID FOR A REMEDY

A Falmouth Girl Tries to Cure Ivy Poison With Carbolic Acid— Is in Serious Condition.

SKIN IS ALL PARALYZED NOW

She Becomes Frantic With Pain and Remained Unconscious Most of Sunday Afternoon.

Because neighbors had told her that carbolic acid would cure ivy poison, Miss Minnie Disselkoen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Disselkoen of Falmouth, is in a serious condition today. She had been suffering from poisoning caused by coming in contact with an ivy vine a few days ago. Her neck and chest have been giving her much pain and she appealed to neighbors for some remedy. A neighbor woman told her that carbolic acid applied to the skin would kill the poison. Perhaps it did but it also came near killing Miss Disselkoen.

The girl who is about twenty years old, saturated cotton with the acid and rubbed it on the places affected by the poison. The acid began to burn her at once and she became frantic with pain. Neighbors gave temporary relief and called Dr. Paxton. In spite of all that was done to relieve the girl she suffered greatly and for a greater part of Sunday afternoon was unconscious.

Miss Disselkoen is some better today and it is believed that she will recover. However, the sensor nerves of her body have been paralyzed and not only is the place burned without feeling, but the girl has no feeling in the skin anywhere on her body. Dr. Paxton says that the external application of the poison had practically the same effect as taking it internally.

PRAISE IS GIVEN FAIR OFFICIALS

Too Much Can Not be Said of Work in Making the Last Exhibit Success.

SECRETARY KING GETS CREDIT

Too much can not be said in praise of the work of the fair officials for their success in engineering the successful exhibit which has just closed. Secretary Will L. King especially deserves much praise for his work and to his untiring efforts, his enterprise and his good judgment the success of the fair is largely due. Tom Coleman, ground superintendent, also deserves much credit for his work both in contributing to the success of the exhibit and keeping it one of the cleanest ever given in the county. E. O. Humes, a director, who worked night and day for the exhibit, is another to whom much praise should be given. President Jones of the association was a great booster and was always there when there was any work to do. He is also receiving much credit for his work. Others of the association who aided in making the fair the success it was can not be praised too highly.

IS NOT EXPECTED TO LIVE

Word Received That Mrs. Ambrose Newhouse is Seriously Ill.

Marshall Newhouse received a telegram last night that his son's wife, Mrs. Ambrose Newhouse, was seriously ill and not expected to live. Mr. Newhouse left this morning for Akron, Ind., to be at her bedside. Mr. and Mrs. Newhouse have been married only about two years.

WAS A VICTIM OF THE WHITE PLAGUE

Buck Brown Died Yesterday Morning of Tuberculosis After Long Illness.

FUNERAL SERVICES TUESDAY

Buck Brown, aged fifty-five years, died at his home in West First street yesterday morning about five o'clock of tuberculosis. He had been ill for several weeks and his death had been expected for several days.

The deceased is survived by a widow and five children, three boys and two girls. The funeral services will be conducted from the New Salem M. P. church tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock by Rev. Hetrick. Burial will be in Pleasant Run cemetery.

RUSHVILLE TRAIN KILLS $200 HORSE

Lake Erie & Western Whistle Scares Animal and it Runs Upon the Track.

BAD ACCIDENT AT NEW CASTLE

The grocery delivery outfit belonging to Thomas Pentecost was struck by the out-going Rushville train Saturday morning, says the New Castle Times. The wagon was demolished and the horse, which was valued at $200, was killed. The accident was a peculiar one in several ways.

Archie Fletcher, the delivery boy, had left the horse and wagon standing in front of Howard Coon's residence, on East Indiana street, while he delivered some groceries. The horse, which was left unhitched, started down the street toward the railroad, which is but a short distance from the Coon house. The animal was cropping the grass at the side of the street and was scared by the sharp whistle of the engine of the Rushville train, which was approaching the crossing. It dashed upon the track just in time for the locomotive to strike the wagon and reduce it to kindling wood. The horse, being freed from the wagon, started off down the track in front of the train, and after running for about two squares was run down at the intersection of the track with C avenue.

BOOTLEGGER IS FINED IN COURT

Orpheus Taylor is Given Thirty Days in Jail and Twenty Dollars Fine.

ALLOW MATLOCK TO GO FREE

But Was Arrested in About Thirty Minutes by Sheriff King on Same Charge.

Orpheus Taylor will have to spend thirty days in the jail and will also have to pay a twenty dollar fine as the result of selling liquor without a license. This was the action taken in mayor's court this morning after the case had been heard last Saturday, and the sentence withheld until today. Taylor was arrested on the fair ground last Friday, when he was caught selling whiskey.

The sentence was withheld until today because it was thought that several others would be implicated in the illicit dealings and would probably be arrested and brought into court. Dora Matlock was arrested Saturday on a similar charge and was thought to have been implicated with Taylor.

He was brought up in mayor's court this morning and it was found that there was no charge against him as no affidavit had been filed. He was allowed to go free. In about thirty minutes he was arrested by Sheriff King on a charge of bootlegging.

Matlock was making hasty preparations to leave the city, when he was captured by the sheriff at the home of Jude Levi. He said that he was going to Shelbyville for the fair there this week. Matlock will now have to await the action of the circuit court, where his case will be tried.

More arrests are expected to follow soon in connection with the case. The police say that there are several suspects who are thought to be implicated in carrying on the unlawful trade.

WERE MARRIED 55 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. James Carr Celebrate the Fifty-Fifth Anniversary of Their Wedding.

HAVE MOVED ONLY TWO TIMES

Mrs. Julius Hambrook of this city Sunday attended the fifty-fifth wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Carr, who live in Kingston, Decatur county. It was an enjoyable occasion and the history of Mr. and Mrs. Carr, who are well known in this county is rather remarkable in some respects. Both are 83 years old, but were able to enjoy the day Sunday almost as much as some of the younger ones. One thing which Mr. and Mrs. Carr pride themselves especially on is the fact that in all the fifty-five years of their married life they have changed residences only twice.

OTHERS CANCEL, TOO.

Late Saturday afternoon the cha-tauqua management received a telegram from Nicola, the magician, stating that sickness in his family had made it impossible for him to fill his engagement here that evening.—Richmond Item.

BEGS FROM MEN HE ONCE RULED

C. E. Daugherty, Once on Lake Erie & Western Run, in Hard Straits From Drink.

HE WAS DISLIKED WHEN HERE

One Time Man of Good Position and Authority, he is Now a Wanderer.

Once a man with a good position and dealing with the public with a mind that saw with the letter and not the meaning of the rules for a railroad, C. E. Daugherty has been in this city for the last few days begging money to buy enough to keep soul and body together. Even to those who thought they were mistreated at one time by the conductor on the Lake Erie & Western, it is pathetic to see the man—once healthy and robust, and enjoying the confidence of his company if not the good will of the public—now reduced to the ranks where drink is the sole craving of the depraved appetite and begging is the only means of existence.

Daugherty will probably be remembered here longer than most conductors who have come and gone. He became known all along the line for his strict construction of rules and his unswerving loyalty to what he regarded as his duty. Considerable stir was caused one time because he was about to put two children off the train between here and Sexton. For some reason or other the children did not have enough money to carry them to their station and the conductor was about to put them off alone in the country, when other passengers came to the rescue and paid the children's fare. This little incident caused much indignation in this city and made many enemies for the conductor.

He was later transferred to a regular passenger run and became one of the most trusted men on the line. And then drink got the better of him and cost him his position. Gradually he became what he is today—a wanderer without friends and who knows not where his next meal will come from. And here in Rushville he begged money from men with whom at one time he was as severe and unyielding as a Czar.

LIVES SAVED BY BREAK IN ENGINE

Train Crew Delayed in Reaching the Freight House Which Was Struck by Lightning.

DONNEGAN'S NARROW ESCAPE

A slight break in the Lake Erie engine was probably all that saved the lives of Musto Donnegan, formerly of this city, and members of the train crew, including Al Donnegan, conductor of the New Castle division of the Lake Erie. The freight house at New Castle was struck by lightning last Friday evening and as it happened there was no one in the building. The crew had stopped to repair a slight break in the engine and for that reason had not yet reached the freight house. Musto Donnegan's desk is just at the side of the stove which was knocked down and turned around by the bolt. A hole was torn in the wall by the bolt and other serious damage was done.

VISITING IN MORMON CITY

The Veteran Blacksmith of Gings Receives Special Favor.

Theodore Schonert, the veteran blacksmith of Gings, returned last Saturday from a three months' visit with his son and daughter in Salt Lake City. Mr. Schonert reports having had a pleasant visit in the Mormon city and returned looking the picture of health, notwithstanding his extreme age—seventy-seven years. During his stay there Mr. Schonert had the distinction of sitting in the buggy of the favorite wife of the late Brigham Young, head of the Mormon church. The buggy was being repaired in his son's blacksmith shop.

WINNING CHECKER PLAYER CHECKED

Greenfield Man Puts an End to the String of Victories Won by Champion.

IN TOURNAMENT AT CARTHAGE

N. C. Holt of this city, at a checker tournament Friday in Carthage, stopped effectively the list of victories chalked up by J. M. Logan of Mooresville, who claims the State championship, says the Greenfield Reporter.

A number of Shirley and Knights-town men witnessed the contests and several good players engaged in games with Mr. Logan, but without success. Finally Mr. Holt was taken on with the result that of eight games three were draws. Mr. Logan won three and Mr. Holt two, thus establishing for the latter a record of one of the best players in Indiana.

ROBBERS ENTER LUMBER OFFICE

John Simpson & Son's Place Visited by Thieves Who Fail to Get Any Money.

PROBABLY USE SKELETON KEY

The office of John Simpson & Son, well known lumber dealers of St. Paul, was entered Friday night, and the desks were ransacked in the efforts to find money, says the Shelbyville Democrat. Messrs. Simpson never keep money around the office, and the burglar or burglars, had to be content with a cheap watch, belonging to Mr. Simpson's son, that was in one of the desk drawers.

No one living near the lumber yard saw anything uncommon Friday night but when Mr. Simpson went down to the office Saturday morning about six-thirty o'clock everything was in confusion. His nightly visitors had thrown papers all over the room in their endeavors to find money. The robbers evidently entered the building with a skeleton key, as there is no evidence of the doors or windows being forced.

GOING EN MASSE TO SEE WILSON

Rush County Admirers of Dick Wilson Will See Team Work at State Fair.

RENOWNED BLUE BULL'S HOME

Indianapolis Paper Says Reports Indicate That People Here Are Proud of it.

According to reports from Rushville, Rush county is coming en masse to visit the State fair and take in the races, says the Indianapolis News. Old Rush claims the distinction of being the pioneer horse district of Indiana, and takes great pains to boost her representative horsemen. Dick Wilson of Rushville will have Lady Maud C and Hedge-wood Boy, the great pacers, at the State fair in three attempts at world's records, and Rush county is coming to pull for him. Dick told his friends before he shipped his stable away from Indianapolis several weeks ago, that he would certainly take some bonus money for breaking records, and they, the people of Rush have enough faith in him to believe he will do it. So they are coming to watch and help him.

It is just as natural for Rush county to place herself at the head of the Indiana horse world as it is for a Rush county trainer to go out and win his races. For was not Rush the home of old Blue Bull 75? Any small boy in the country can tell you the whole history of that horse, which everybody in that same county regards as the greatest horse that ever lived or ever will live.

About 1867 or 1868, a sway-backed, lame-legged horse appeared in the vicinity of Rushville. "Green" Wilson had possession of the nag, and said he came from Kentucky. Wilson used him at county fairs in his official capacity as marshal. With his own high hat and Prince Albert coat Wilson and the ragged-looking horse made such a vivid contrast that Rush pioneers who saw the pair still remember them. The horse had one broken knee, but could outpace almost anything that showed on the road. When he first appeared he could not have been sold for more than $10, being about the most dilapidated specimen imaginable.

The horse was Blue Bull 75, which, in "Green" Wilson's hands, and in the hands of his brother Jim became noted as the greatest sire of speed in his day. Nearly every nag in Rush county traces back on one side or the other in some manner to old Blue Bull. And if he does not Rush county folk will not think much of him. The advent of Blue Bull 75 was the making of Rush county as a harness horse center, and placed the Wilson family at the head of the county. Wherefore it will be only natural for Dick Wilson, whose father owned Blue Bull, to draw a crowd of friends from Rush down to the State fair races.

Rush county was proud of Jim Wilson, Dick's father, and then came to be proud of Dick, who has made a name for himself as one of the country's foremost trainers and drivers. When Dick quits the harness horse game old Rush will hand her affection down to Dick's son, who is even now racing for the money in the big circuits. He drives Lady Maud C, and his father handles Hedge-wood Boy when they are working out. He has raced several Patchen Boy colts with success.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Demmer is recovering from a recent illness.

THE DEATH LIST NUMBERS 1,200

Monterey Overwhelmed by Rising Waters.

DAMAGE RUNS INTO MILLIONS

When Swollen River Swept Over a Large Portion of "the Chicago of Mexico" the People Were Caught Without Warning and Found Escape Impossible—The Full Toll of Death May Never Be Known, but It Is Estimated That No Fewer Than 1,200 Lives Were Lost.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 30.—Direct communication with Monterey has been re-established. The operator at that point states that the number of dead will reach 1,200.

Laredo, Tex., Aug. 30.—The prosperous city of Monterey, Mexico, is today in the grasp of death, desolation and sorrow. The flood waters of the Santa Catarina river continue on their rapid course, and to add to the horror of the situation, the rain continues to fall, causing untold suffering to the thousands of homeless persons who have congregated on the various plazas, their only homes in the extreme emergency.

The destructive flood of Saturday, due to the continued fall of rain, swept everything before it and hardly a vestige is left of what was a few days ago a conglomeration of small huts swarming with families belonging to the poorer classes. The loss of life, which cannot be accurately estimated for days—perhaps weeks—was among the poor classes and is variously placed at from 400 to 1,000 souls.

The flood reached its crest in the early part of the hours after midnight and many families were swept away to a watery death with hardly a chance to fight for their lives. With the onrush of the water pandemonium reigned, and as the poor wretches were swept from their homes, on the tops of which many had sought shelter, never for a moment anticipating that the water would reach an unprecedented height, pitiful appeals for assistance could be heard rising above the roar of the onrushing waters by those on higher ground, but who were powerless to render aid of any kind.

Every effort was at once made by the kind-hearted people to shelter the women and children. Their homes were thrown open to the sufferers; the police station, many of the hotels and private clubs, as well as the rooms of several organizations were placed at the disposal of the authorities, and for the greater part the women and children were cared for. However, many of the men were compelled to sleep in the open in the various plazas. Both Zaragoza and Hidalgo, suburbs, were alive with people throughout the night, and a vast throng congregated in this vicinity, which is on high ground, in order to witness the rampage of the miniature Niagara as it swept onward after completing its work of destruction.

Already many bodies have been recovered, but it is impossible to accurately state the number. It is learned from a semi-reliable source that the police records show that 400 bodies had been recovered up to noon Sunday. Yet scores upon scores are still believed to be lodged at various points along the stream, and it may be weeks before they are recovered, and many will never be found.

Pitiful scenes are reported among the women and children. Many women have been separated from their husbands; mothers from their children without knowledge of the whereabouts of one another, and scenes of the most profound grief are witnessed on all sides. To add to the disaster the Santa Catarina has worked out for itself a new channel, dividing into two raging streams and separating in such a manner that another and modernly constructed part of the town is threatened. It is said that warnings have been sent out to many of the hotels and business houses throughout the very center of the city to be prepared for the worst and to take preventative measures. This warning would not necessarily mean that there would be any loss of life, but that the first floors of various buildings might be flooded and entail a large financial loss on stocks of merchandise, etc. The modern portion of the city is considered to be high enough to escape the ravages of the flood, but in view of the fact that the rise of the waters has been unprecedented, it has been considered the better part of discretion to at least warn all threatened territory.

It is thought that the damage will be far in excess of first estimates. The Monterey smelter, one of the largest in Mexico, suffered a loss by water, from the deluge of rain and not as a result of a rise in the river that is variously estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000.

The Monterey steel plant, the only plant of its kind in the republic, and which cost originally $10,000,000 to construct, is reported to have been damaged to the extent of from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The electric light and street railway system of Monterey was damaged to the extent of approximately $1,000,000. The Monterey water and sewerage system suffered a loss which is estimated at $1,000,000 or more.

This damage, together with the loss resulting from the complete annihilation of approximately 5,000 jacalas or huts, adobe houses and some structures of more pretentious appearance, together with their contents, all ruined by the inflow of water, will bring the financial loss up to approximately $7,000,000. Estimates run as high as $12,000,000.

Monterey is one of the most progressive cities in the republic and is often referred to as the "Chicago of Mexico." Large amounts of merchandise, machinery and food products are imported to this city from the United States, it being estimated that 85 per cent of the population of the city are consumers to a greater or less extent of American goods. In view of this fact it is thought that the contributions for the relief of the stricken city will come in promptly and liberally.

GREEK KING BOWS TO PUBLIC OPINION

Administrative Reforms Are Promised.

Athens, Greece, Aug. 30.—The grave political crisis here, which reached its height in the mutiny of the local garrison and the formation of a new cabinet, has subsided. A decree was published Sunday granting amnesty to the troops concerned in the military movement and those who had been encamped outside of the city for twenty-four hours, numbering 548, returned in the afternoon to their respective barracks. They were addressed by their leader, Colonel Zorbas, who said that as the nation had approved their demands and the king had granted amnesty, they must return to the path of loyalty and discipline.

The city is tranquil. It is stated that the crown prince will resign as chief in command of the army. Among the reforms demanded by the troops were that the general command of the army should be entrusted to three officers of the rank of general, acting under the supreme authority of a royal prince, the other members of the royal family serving in the army to be treated as ordinary officers; that foreign officers shall be appointed to reorganize the army and navy, the latter to be strengthened by an ironclad and eight destroyers. Protest also was made against the maintenance of several royal yachts, it being contended that one for the king's use was sufficient.

The new cabinet has issued a statement promising compliance with public opinion. It will submit to parliament proposals for internal and economic administrative reforms, but will continue the government's foreign policy unchanged.

DISASTROUS MINE CAVE

Two Blocks of West Scranton Sink
Into Abandoned Workings.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 30.—By a mine cave, the worst the city has ever experienced, fully $200,000 damage was done in West Scranton. Abandoned workings called "Cork and Bottle" colliery of the Fairlawn Coal company, which ceased operations twenty years ago, gave way under an area equal to two city blocks, which sank from six to eight feet, throwing houses from their foundations, cracking walls and otherwise damaging buildings.

Public school No. 16, a $75,000 brick structure, was so badly damaged that it will have to be torn down. The other properties damaged are mostly frame residences, with a few small store buildings. One of the biggest items of loss is the land, which on account of being on a steep hillside, is probably made unmarketable.

A new three-story tenement on the brow of the hill slid down the declivity six or seven feet and is threatening to topple with further settling.

Gas and water pipes were broken in all sections of the disturbed area and police are keeping people from entering upon it for fear of a lighted match starting a fire.

Shot Wife and Self.

Indianapolis, Aug. 30.—After an ineffectual attempt to induce his wife to return to his home in Evansville, James Garrett Sunday shot his wife and then shot himself, inflicting a wound from which he died in a few hours. Garrett also attempted to shoot his young son, but the weapon missed fire. Mrs. Garrett was not mortally wounded. The tragedy occurred at 626 E. Twelfth street, where Mrs. Garrett had been living for the past six weeks. Garrett was the foreman of a printing shop in Evansville.

Attorneys General Elect Officers.
Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 30.—James Bingham of Indiana was elected secretary and treasurer at the convention of attorneys general. Other officials elected were: President, Fred S. Jackson, Kansas; vice president, M. S. Webb, California.

The rich Futurity—the classic race between two-year-olds nominated before they are foaled—is being run this afternoon at Sheepshead Bay.

CHIEF TARIFF EXPERT

How an Army Officer Became Aldrich's Greatest Helper.

WAS DINGLEY'S SECRETARY.

Revision Work Major Herbert Lord Did Twelve Years Ago Won Him His Military Commission—Said to Know More About the Tariff Than Any Other Living Man.

The brand "U. S. army" will have to be placed somewhere on the new tariff bill by reason of the highly important contribution of Major Herbert M. Lord, U. S. A., to the work of preparing it.

That an army officer should be the chief of all the tariff experts of the great committee on finance has been the occasion for a good many jokes since the bill came from committee. Senator J. P. Dilliver painted a thrilling word picture of Major Lord, encoined in a private office in the senate office building, his name on the door, arrayed in all the bravery and panoply of war, figuring percentages and counting the threads in square inches of cotton fabrics. While it seems a bit funny, the fact is that Major Lord knows more about tariff than any other one man now extant. More than that, instead of his army training making him a tariff expert, his tariff expertness made him an army officer.

Possessor of a Wonderful Memory.

Major Lord's career as a tariff expert began about fourteen years ago. He was a Maine man and became secretary of Governor Dingley about two years before the Dingley revision was taken up. He developed great aptitude for the work, having a great "head for figures" and a memory which everybody admitted couldn't be beaten. He had no notion of becoming a soldier. In anticipation of the revision which was coming on he set about studying tariff. He learned the story of all the schedules and tariff acts from the beginning, read the debates and affiliated with the customs experts till he knew all they did and remembered every word and decimal point of it all.

So by the time the Dingley bill had become law Lord was recognized by both Dingley and Aldrich, as well as by Allison and the rest of its makers, as the greatest living aggregation of accurate tariff information. President McKinley had come to know and like him; in fact, knew him quite well before he was elected president.

Excellent Record in the Philippines.

After the tariff act had passed President McKinley indicated a desire to do something for Mr. Lord. The Spanish war came on, and Lord was offered a commission as captain paymaster and sent to the Philippines. There his service was excellent. His accounts were always accurate and complete, and he won promotion to a majority on his merits. He was quietly pursuing his army career when the revision of 1909 became imminent, and Senator Aldrich sent for him. Could he help out the finance committee again? Certainly. Did he think he had preserved such accurate recollection of all those detailed transactions of twelve years ago as would be reliable and secure? Of course he had. He demonstrated right away that he knew the old tariff law in every detail. That settled it. He was detailed by the army people to the special service of helping to make the tariff bill and became the alter ego of Senator Aldrich.

"What sort of bill are you going to make?" an old friend asked him soon after he had settled down to work. "You were here when we made the last one?" he countered.

"Yes, I was."

"Do you recollect what sort that was?"

"It's generally understood to have been of the upward style," was the reply.

"Well," Major Lord replied, "that's the only kind I know how to write. Wait and see how it comes out."

And the friend to whom he made that observation is lugging it around as the evidence that if justice were done to everybody in tariff making affairs this bill would be known as the Lord bill.—Washington Cor. New York Telegram.

Pleasant Reward Proffered.

Ralph Will's of Wilkesbarre, Pa., recently found a wallet containing $9,000, and when he returned it to the owner he was offered as a reward a vacation trip of his own choosing through the United States. He has not decided whether to accept the reward offered or not.

The Musical Lawn Mower.

[A New Jersey man has invented an attachment to a lawn mower which will produce music while the grass is being cut.—News Note.]

Oh, give back the days of the old-fashioned clatter. When, at the first peep of the dawn, Your neighbor—you called him as mad as a hatter—

Went mowing his long whiskered lawn! For now he's "improved" it with themes operative

That complicate matters anew, And the language you hurl is both loud and emphatic

As the tunes of the mowing reach you.

He begins with a scene from some stand-by from Verdi

Which drowns out the click of the blades.

And he turns on a bit from old "Car-men," so sturdy.

When he trims off the terrace's grades. And you toss on your bed, and you curse at Puccini,

And you wish to see quartered and drawn

This neighbor of yours who's so low down and mean

Makes music while mowing the lawn.

COMFORTS AT FAIR

Improvements at Indiana Exposition to Help the Visitors Enjoy a Week of Sight-Seeing.

SOME FEATURES FOR WOMEN

They Find Profitable Enjoyment in All Departments—Flower Show on New Basis—Natiello's Band, of Philadelphia, Indianapolis Military and Newsboys' Bands Will Give Concerts.

Looking to the comfort of its thousands of visitors from over the state the week of Sept. 6, the management of the State Fair is making numerous improvements on the grounds at Indianapolis. The system of cement walks about the grounds is being extended by 1,000 feet of paving, and in time all of the important buildings of the fair will be so connected, most of them now being reached by these walks.

The water supply for the coming fair will be provided from deep-driven wells, to which a pump with a capacity of 600 gallons a minute will be attached. The fair in September is to be a dustless exposition. The roadways were oiled last summer, and before the next fair will have another heavy coating of crude petroleum. Turnstiles have been placed at the gates that visitors can be better taken care of and that gate-men may perform their work with less difficulty than in other years.

The fair management in working out its improvement ideas from year to year keeps in mind especially the visitors from away from Indianapolis. This has led to the placing of many drinking fountains about the grounds, the building of a grandstand and open seats along the racetrack with a total capacity of 18,000 people. It led to the erection of the coliseum, where there are 5,000 free seats for the day horse and cattle shows, and should a heavy rain come, this building will easily shelter 20,000 people. Scores of settees are scattered under the shade trees about the grounds, and visitors are always free to bring their baskets from home and spread lunch on the grassy plots.

No gambling on the races is allowed at the Indiana Fair. No intoxicating liquors are permitted. No games of chance to fleece the unwary are in operation. No immoral shows are conducted. The grounds are policed by forty men. It is always the purpose of the fair management to make the exposition clean, wholesome and safe for women and children, and the result has been that about two women to one man come to it from over the state.

The fair officials in providing entertainment for the women have by experience found they enjoy practically every department. The women like the horse and cattle shows, the races, and it is common to find women have left their farm homes before day and are about the barns looking at the blooded dairy cattle long before Indianapolis people have breakfasted. The poultry show always holds the interest of the women, as does the exhibitions of fruits and flowers, the honey displays and the dairy products, with the Purdue demonstrations in butter making.

The fair's flower show is on a new basis this year, being in the charge of the Indiana Florists' Association. Classes have been provided for both professional and amateur growers and farm and town women who have beds of asters, begonias, geraniums, dahlias, snapdragons and other flowers about their doors can compete. The total flower prizes amount to over $300, and there is promise that there will be many more competitors than in other years. In the same building the show of fruits will be given, the prizes for fruits and flowers reaching $1,800. In the honey show $250 in prizes will be awarded. The display of table luxuries is always interesting to the women, and many of the best makers of bread, cakes, preserves, candy and pastry compete for the prizes, which at the coming fair amount to over $200.

The Fine Arts building is again going to overflow with displays of needlework, hand-made lace, embroidery, photography, arts and crafts oil paintings and water colors, hand painted china and ceramics. Some of the exhibitors who have carried off ribbons year after year need to look to their laurels at the coming fair for there will be some fresh competition from new sources. Among the new exhibitors will be the art students of the John Herron Art Institute at Indianapolis. If ribbons in the art department are more difficult to win at the next fair, it will make these trophies all the more worth having and the displays of higher quality.

The fair in September will offer a feast of concert band music which will be pleasing both to town and country women, as well as all other visitors. Natiello's band of fifty men will play in the coliseum afternoon and evening. The Indianapolis Military band will give morning concerts in the coliseum and at the races in the afternoon. The Indianapolis Newsboys' band will play during the day near the Administration building. Natiello's band is a concert organization of high merit and will present many musical features during its fair engagement.

COMPACT OF THE WRIGHTS.

Aeroplane's Won't Risk Both Lives at Same Time by Flying Together.

The Wright brothers, the famous aeroplane men, never make a flight together and never will, according to a compact they have made, says a Washington dispatch. Thus if one should be killed there still remains the other to carry on the work.

The question came up the other day as to who should accompany either of them in the Fort Myer flights, for under their contract the aeroplane must carry two persons before it will be accepted. When asked why he would not take his brother Orville Wright said: "We will never fly together. It would not be wise for the both of us to sail in the same machine."

The death of Lieutenant Selfridge is said to have caused the compact.

Gold Covers For Diamond Earrings.

An invention which will be welcome to many women is a hollow gold ball to snap over a diamond or pearl earring. The balls are designed, of course, for traveling, but they will be of use at other times as well. The tiny globes are ornamental and are easily detached. They are made to fit gems of various sizes.

SOCIETY BAN ON MEAT.

Wife of Ambassador Bryce and Mrs. Sherman in Crusade.

Led by Mrs. Bryce, wife of the ambassador from Great Britain, and seconded by Mrs. Sherman, wife of the vice president, a vigorous campaign against all animal foods will be carried on at the fashionable watering places, says a Boston dispatch. It will be goodby to not only meat, for cheese, tea and coffee are also to be put on the forbidden list.

Mrs. Bryce, who will spend several weeks at Pride's Crossing, Mass., is a strong believer in vegetarian principles. A close personal friendship exists between her and Mrs. Sherman, and in view of the almost absolute social autocracy wielded by the two women it is predicted that society will seriously take up the vegetarian question.

President Taft, while not a vegetarian, is known to favor most of the vegetarians' ideas, while Mrs. Taft is even more inclined toward their principles.

GRADUATION GOWNS $2 EACH

Made by the Girls Themselves as Showing Value of Domestic Science.

The gowns which the 100 girls graduated from the Chestnut street grammar school in Springfield, Mass., wore the other afternoon were made by the girls themselves. Some time ago it occurred to Principal Candlin that such a feature would go far to prove to the public that the domestic science courses in the public schools were of a practical nature.

Another object was to demonstrate that an attractive graduation dress need not be beyond the means of the poorest pupil. The spotless white gowns, which withstood the closest inspection, cost a little less than $2 apiece.

GLIMPSES OF MARTY KEESE.

New York City Hall's Famous Janitor Who Arrested Boss Tweed.

Martin J. Keese, who recently died in Long Island City at the age of seventy-two, was janitor and custodian of the city hall at New York for twenty-eight years.

Marty Keese, as the aged janitor of the city hall has been known to mayors, aldermen, politicians and newspaper men who have come and gone there for more than a quarter of a century, had a most interesting history.

For nearly ten years he ran with the old volunteer firemen, fought through the civil war with the Ellsworth fire zouaves and saw the gallant Colonel of that organization shot. He was himself wounded at the battle of Bull Run. As a deputy sheriff he arrested William M. Tweed and Comptroller Connolly and guarded the latter in his incarceration in Ludlow street jail. He enlisted in the famous Walker filibustering expedition, was one of the first three men to walk over the Brooklyn bridge and stood guard before the stand on which General Butler and Horace Greeley spoke in City hall park.

The old janitor always took great delight in telling of his joining the Walker expedition. He and several of his friends attended a meeting in the Bowery theater one night, at which General Walker spoke. They became so enthused with his account of the possibilities of his venture that they enlisted on the spot. On the way down the bay when the expedition started Marty and his companions bubbled over with the fun of the thing and made so much disturbance and played so many tricks on the boat that they were put ashore at Sandy Hook. "It was in January, and it took us three days to get home, but I never have been sorry that they put us off the boat," he would say. He also always congratulated himself, with good reason, on the failure of another seafaring experience. He was engaged to fill a vacancy on the steamship Pacific and had gone on board when the man whose place he was to fill turned up. Keese was told that he would not be wanted. He went ashore much disappointed. The boat sailed and was never heard of again.

The pension question was always a sore spot to Keese. A man who knew of his having been wounded in the war asked him with surprise once why he had never applied for a pension. "Why should I?" the old man replied. "I have always been disgusted with the number of undeserving people who receive pensions. Do you realize that the amount of money already spent by the country in pensions exceeds the cost of the war?"

One day Keese was asked what was the most exciting scene he ever saw in City Hall park. "The Greeley-Butler meeting," he replied promptly. "It was just after the war, and the people were very excited. There was a big crowd, and the police and we deputies were out in full force. The people heard Greeley through all right, but when Butler got up he was hissed and hooted, and we looked for serious trouble. Several missiles were thrown on to the platform, and one of them, a sound apple, struck on the table beside which the general was standing. He instantly picked it up, took out his knife and peeled, halved, quartered and ate it, coolly waiting for the disturbance to die down. I have always thought that act saved his life. I was told later that there were several men in the crowd with revolvers who had come to the meeting to kill the general. His coolness completely won over the crowd, however."

The party had been at Creve Coeur lake, a resort twelve miles west of the city, earlier in the day, and were speeding homeward when killed. The locomotive struck the automobile squarely and Mr. Witte and his brother were tossed forty feet away. The boy's body dropped from the front of the train an eighth of a mile down the track and the women, caught in the trolley, were crushed almost beyond recognition in the wreckage.

INTERURBAN CAR HITS AUTO.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 30.—Samuel Mossman, a grain dealer of Morton, was instantly killed and his brother Joseph was probably fatally injured when their automobile was struck by an interurban car near Morton.

DESPERATE DEED

Insane Mother Seeks Destruction of Children and Self.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 30.—Mrs. Carrie Sanderson, aged forty-one, of Florence addition, in a fit of insanity, gave five of her six children morphine. While trying to feed the poison to the sixth one she was detected by a neighbor and she then confessed to what she had done. Weldon, aged five years, is dead, but physicians saved the lives of the other children. The mother also took poison and cut her throat, after making her confession, but she is expected to recover. The children range in age from two to ten years.

ZEPPELIN WARMLY WELCOMED.

Berlin, Aug. 30.—The airship Zeppelin III, with Count Zeppelin at the helm, arrived safely at Berlin shortly after noon Sunday and after receiving an uproarious welcome, in which the emperor participated, started at 11:24 last night on its return voyage to Friedrichshafen.

Forty or more representatives of Japanese chambers of commerce are due to reach Seattle on Thursday, and soon thereafter will start on a journey of inspection throughout the country.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The United States won the Hon's share of the honors of the Rheims aviation meeting.

D. Spalding, a Glasgow (Ky.) barber, was shot and killed at that town while resisting arrest.

The seventh triennial festival of the Swiss American Singing societies is being held at Louisville.

President Taft has accepted the resignation of Ormsby McHarg, assistant secretary of the interior.

The National Rifle association's tournament at Camp Perry, O., probably will come to a close Wednesday.

On Saturday there will be held in Albany, N. Y., what has been styled a "conference of progressive Democrats."

In a collision between two passenger trains on the Big Four railroad at Springfield, O., six persons were seriously injured.

In a jealous rage, Joe Bates, guard on the Spartanburg (S. C.) city chain gang, shot and killed Mrs. Docia Bolter, eighteen-year-old wife of a farmer.

Finding him guilty of charges of misconduct in office and neglect of duty, Governor Hughes has ordered the removal from office of Louis F. Haffen, president of the borough of the Bronx, in the city of New York.

A definite statement from Mr. Taft of his wishes regarding amendments to the interstate commerce and anti-trust laws was presented today in New York by Attorney General Wickersham to the commission designated by the president to frame them.

BOYS CAME NEAR WRECKING TRAIN

Illinois Youths Wanted To See Smash Up.

Kankakee, Ill., Aug. 30.—An attempt by four boys to wreck a Chicago express, southbound, on the Illinois Central railroad, was discovered by a switching crew in time to prevent an accident to the train, which was crowded.

The boys had placed frog blocks and rail braces at a switch south of town. Verly Smith, Sam and David Blatt and Clayton Robertson, ranging in age from fourteen to sixteen years, were arrested near the scene of the intended wreck, where they were awaiting developments. They admitted placing the obstructions on the track and said they just "wanted to see a wreck."

AUTO TRAGEDY

Five Were Killed When Train Near St. Louis Struck Machine.

St. Louis, Aug. 30.—When an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a passenger train, five persons were killed.

The dead: Theodore F. Witte, Theodore F. Witte, Jr., aged three years; Mrs. Carl Klinge, Miss Halcyon Campbell, Frederick O. Witte. The two men were brothers and officials of the Witte Hardware company, one of the oldest mercantile establishments of the city. Mrs. Klinge was their sister-in-law.

The party had been at Creve Coeur lake, a resort twelve miles west of the city, earlier in the day, and were speeding homeward when killed. The locomotive struck the automobile squarely and Mr. Witte and his brother were tossed forty feet away. The boy's body dropped from the front of the train an eighth of a mile down the track and the women, caught in the trolley, were crushed almost beyond recognition in the wreckage.

TENNYSON CENTENARY.

Notable Events in the Career of the Great English Poet.

Lord Alfred Tennyson, England's famous poet laureate, who was born 100 years ago, told his son Hallam that at eight he had written "Thomsonian blank verse in praise of flowers and at ten and eleven, under the spell of Pope's 'Homer,' hundreds and hundreds of lines in the regular Pompeian meter" and a little later an epic of 6,000 lines after the pattern of Scott.

Tennyson's Life.

1809—(Aug. 6) Born, the fourth of twelve children, to the Rev. George Tennyson, rector, of Somersby, Lincolnshire.

1816—To school at Louth (for four years—"How I hated it!").

1820—Studying with his father, "enjoying the run of a library more various and stimulating than the average country rectory could boast."

1825—(February) Matriculated at Trinity, Cambridge, where he made many famous friends, showed much interest in questions of the day, though leaving a reputation as a poor scholar and without a degree (February, 1831).

1830—In this and the two following years traveled considerably with Arthur Henry Hallam, who died suddenly at Vienna, Sept. 15, 1833.

1833—For nine years "lay fallow," writing little and publishing nothing, living at Somersby, in Epping forest, at Tunbridge Wells and elsewhere.

1842—"Arrived" with his third collection of poems; elected to the Anonymous club, welcomed at Bath House and one of the Holland House circle.

1845—(September) Pensioned by Peel with £200 a year.

1850—Succeeded Wordsworth as poet laureate, twenty-first in the line of Chaucer and Spenser, Jonson and Dryden. The post was first offered Samuel Rogers, but he declined on the score of his age, eighty-seven.

1850—(June 13) Married at Shipplake church to Emily Sellwood after a courtship of nearly a score of years.

1855—(June) Honored with an Oxford D. C. L.

1860—From this year almost to the close of his life the poet spent from one to five of every twelve months in travel.

1862—(April) His first interview with Queen Victoria. (Her journal carries this characteristic record: "After luncheon saw the great poet Tennyson in dearest Albert's room for nearly an hour and most interesting it was. Asked him to sit down.")

1865—(April 23, Shakespeare's birthday) Laid the foundation stone for "Aldworth," near Haslemere, Surrey.

1869—Made honorary fellow of Trinity college, Cambridge.

1884—(January) Made "Baron Tennyson" by Gladstone, having twice earlier (73 and 74) refused the honor.

1888—(April) Death of Lionel Tennyson.

1889—In this year, after the news of Browning's death, the laureate seemed to lose much of his keen interest in life and till his death lived more quietly than ever, walking much, visiting a few friends, dabbling with water colors and reading Jane Austen.

1892—(Oct. 6) Died.

1892—(Oct. 12) Buried in the abbey beside Browning and before the tomb of Chaucer, with "Cymbeline" laid in his dead hands. Westminster's nave was lined by men from the Balaklava Light brigade, and the pallbearers were the Duke of Argyll, Lords Dufferin, Selborne, Salisbury, Rosebery and Kelvin, Sir James Paget, Dr. Butler of Trinity, Dr. Jowett, the historians Froude and Lecky and the United States minister, Robert T. Lincoln.

FOUNDED ON MERCY.

Boston Judge Says That is the Basis of Divorce Law.

"The divorce court is an institution of civilization," according to Judge Richardson of the superior court in Boston. He was hearing the petition of a wife who sought an injunction against her husband from interfering with her personal liberty pending divorce proceedings, in which cruelty was alleged.

Judge Richardson said: "The laws of Massachusetts in respect to divorce are founded on mercy—in a large majority of cases, as to practical results, mercy to woman."

"Those persons who talk much against divorce and the divorce court mistake, among other errors, the cause for the consequence. Divorce is the consequence of habitual drunkenness, cruelty, desertion and other crimes which are justifiable grounds for divorce and not the cause of them."

"The divorce court is an institution of civilization. Barbarians are not troubled by the law's delays or a process of a court. They dispose of an undutiful spouse more summarily. It is only within the last half century—and under government purely secular—that married women have had adequate protection in respect to their property or persons."

ENGLAND'S FEAR OF WAR.

Even Children Drill in Parks in Play, Says General Hawkins.

General Rush C. Hawkins, U. S. A., retired, who recently returned to New York from a visit abroad, visited England and Germany.

"There are evidences of a war scare in England," he said. "The most remarkable one is the sight of children playing at being soldiers in the parks. Their play is a war game, and the youngsters drill in the parks and charge fancied enemies."

"Germany has no more intention of going to war than we have, but it is hard to convince the average Englishman of that fact."

New Mail Catching Device.

Albert Hupp of Kansas City, Mo., has invented a device for catching mail pouches and delivering them from fast mail trains. The postoffice department has been experimenting with various devices for many years in the hope of finding an improvement over the old system of the iron arm extending from the door of the mail car to catch the pouches hung on a crane at the stations. Mr. Hupp has invented a collapsible tube device for the mail cars which, he says, has a capacity to conduct several pouches at a time from the station to the mail car. It delivers pouches into a receptacle without stopping the trains. He is trying to interest the railroads and the postoffice department in the new invention.

RACES AT THE INDIANA STATE FAIR.

The important racing events of the year in Indiana will be at the state fair the week of Sept. 6. The prizes and purses amount to $34,000. The fair's race course is one of the fastest in the country, and some historic records have been made on it. The grand stand seats 8,000 people, and there are free seats for 10,000 more. It is not uncommon for 25,000 or 30,000 people to spend an afternoon at the state fair races.

THIS AND THAT

Never mind, there'll be several more days that will at least resemble real summer.

You understand, of course, that if you don't want to go to the Fayette Free Fair you don't have to. For there will be enough to go without you.

No matter how important you may think your are did you ever notice that somehow or other the world manages to worry along without you while you are on your vacation.

It's really hot enough without pouring carbolic acid on yourself—don't you think?

You may as well be happy over the fact that your vacation is over. Being out of humor about it won't make your work any easier.

This much is true at least—there's no excuse on a day like this for you not getting interested in the boom movement.

An Indianapolis man here this morning said Rushville was the prettiest and best city of its size in the State. We'll take it by consent. However, we should be just a little better than the rest.

No wonder those thieves left after taking "$23" from Allen's grocery.

The kidneys eliminate poisons by acting as filters for the blood. When they fail in this respect serious ailments must result. Pineules for the kidneys are what you should take at the first warning sign of kidney trouble. They assist the kidneys in expelling uric acid poison. Sold by Lytle's drug store.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

WANTS TO BE A REAL CITY.

(New Castle Courier.)

The city charter movement has again taken on renewed life and promises to amount to something this time. Four petitions are in circulation asking the town board to take the necessary action to change the town government to one with a city form. The men back of the movement are in earnest about it and are among the town's best citizens. They believe that the time is ripe and they are going right after the proposition.

One of the petitions will be sent through all the south end factories and it is stated that a great majority of the employees are ready to sign.

One member of the town board has expressed himself on the proposition and says that he will vote for a city charter election when the matter is brought before the board. He also states that other members of the board have expressed the same opinion to him.

SOME CHILDREN!

(Shelbyville Democrat.)

If the old woman who lived in a shoe and had so many children that she didn't know what to do could have been present on the spacious lawn of the Hord sanitarium the other afternoon she would have been convinced that the raising of large families is not a lost art.

Judge K. M. Hord some time ago issued a challenge to other parts of the city to produce more children than exist in the two squares on Franklin avenue, contained between Elliott and Habig streets. To further fortify himself in case the challenge is accepted, the genial jurist had the children living in these two squares gather at the sanitarium grounds and have "their pictures."

There are one hundred and five children living in the two squares. Think of the show of molar that Roosevelt will exhibit when Judge Hord sends him a picture. Think of the amount of beefsteak that one hundred and five can consume when they are really hungry.

Art of Handshaking

What the Hearty Grasp of the Hand Means in the lives of the big Hoosiers

Some times the old politician just gets to going and there is nothing to do but let him run on, says the Indianapolis Sun. He was like that when the pert young reporter found him the other night. The newspaper man calls attention to the fact that whenever a politician appeared in the hotel lobby a lot of handshaking at once began. The pert young reporter said he couldn't see for the life of him why men in politics must hold hands.

"All this effusive welcome business makes me sick," he said. "These politicians don't mean it when they shake hands. It isn't sanitary. It's hypocritical. Why don't they cut it out and meet each other on the square? Most of them carry one hand behind them with a knife up a sleeve."

The old politician looked wise.

"But let us not do away with the handshake in politics. The Lord knows that is about all most of us get out of it."

"Of course, the political handshake is perfunctory. So is the Roosevelt bark, Dee-lighted." Yet it goes. The woman who gives your paw a reception and says, away down in the mushy contralto of deepest cordiality, "So glad you came," is playing the political game. You don't blame. She says the same thing to the next gent. And she wags his hand as politely as she did yours.

"Well, the politician has got to be polite. He's just as glad to see you in the saloon as the reception committee in the salon. It is all a matter of form, like spending your money in politics. It has got to be done."

"Of course the hand-shaking thing can be overdone. Some men value the thing far beyond its real worth. In this way the thing becomes hypocritical. The man whose heart is not in the hand-shake is likely to be too close and cold and calculating in other things. But between the man of the warm, thrilling, hearty handshake and the clammy person who acts as if he feared you were about to steal some of his lady fingers, I pick the man with the feverish grip for mine."

The game of politics gets in a man's blood. The glad hand gets to be involuntary. The smile of joyous welcome becomes reflex of action. The tender and confidential intonation that greets each voter as a long estrayed brother becomes so fixed that it almost includes the politician's own family. A candidate may even go so far as to shake hands with his own wife—just clean bughouse with too much fellowship.

"Take my friend, Governor Tom Marshall's grip is reassuring and full-handed—just a square man's greeting, as I take it—nothing put on, no gush or cling or special 'grip' to pass along his political prayer. Stokes Jackson shakes hands with all the strength and friendliness of a fried oyster sandwich. He looks away when he does it and slips his hand out of the chancery as quickly as possible. Yet no one accuses Stokes of coldness. He just isn't built to 'pretend.'"

"Watson, I reckon will shake hands with the same man a dozen times a day. Some people think he overworks the hail-fellow gag. But at that he's a hard man to beat."

"Tom Taggart has a good grip and a smile, and he is inclined to hold on as he talks. He is artistic and he gets away with it, quietly, because he really means a good deal of it."

"J. Frank Hanly's grip is quick, vigorous and leaves a tingle. Frank always looks you squarely in the eye when he gets you by the hand, and he lets go when he gets ready. He gives the idea that he is studying the owner of the hand. More than likely he's doing that very thing. "Al Beveridge knows you whether he remembers you or not and he waggles your hand and squeezes it with the muscular energy he acquired as a logger some years ago. He is quick in motion and boyishly jovial in speech, and makes a man feel good while at the same time preserving the atmosphere of senatorial dignity so essential to his position. Mr. Beveridge has a remarkable memory and it gives him a distinct advantage when he desires to slip the glad hand to a few constituents."

"Jim Hemenway is one of the old time glad-handers, and he used to get by with it in his own district. Charley Landis has a rosy palm that always seemed to be itching for contact with the calloused paw of toil, and some folks thought Charley would never lose his grip on the Ninth district. But there must have been soft soap or something on the fist of toil and thereaway last year. Anyway Charley's hand slipped."

"L. Ert Slack has a hearty handshake. Frank Hall shakes carefully and without undue exuberance, as is performing a duty."

"Then they are all hypocrites? asked the reporter."

"No, son, no! Not hypocrites! Don't say that. They are players in a game that is like nothing else in life. The handshaker wants something that the handshake has got. If the handshaker gets this something by shaking, he is the winner at the game. The man who wins is not a hypocrite! No! He's a winner."

Changes are Needed In Making of Roads

The last few years have seen a very radical change in the general attitude toward the building of good roads. The advent of the automobile, the rapid increase in its popularity, the campaign by the National Grange association, the efforts of various automobile associations and other bodies have brought the matter of good roads to the general attention and the effect has been to cause an extended effort to provide good roads in many States with appropriations from State and counties for this purpose.

There is little need to reiterate the economic necessity for good roads, as the reasons for this have been stated many times very fully. It is sufficient to know that the cost per mile of haulage alone for the roads in the United States is vastly greater than in France. This is the tax which the people of this country pay for bad roads. Only a very small proportion of the roads are at the present improved, and a very large proportion of the improved roads are not built in such a manner as to properly withstand the traffic.

The building of good roads in such a manner as to resist the wear and tear in the proper fashion has become complicated by the increasing use of the automobile as a means of travel. Roads which withstood the older traffic for years, and even for centuries, with little expense as to maintenance have rapidly gone to pieces under the deteriorating effects of the high speed heavy automobile traffic.

The shearing effect of this traffic upon the surface of the road, throwing the small particles of stone out of the road to be blown away as dust and leaving the larger stones loose and easily displaced, has made it impossible to construct a macadam road which will stand for more than one or two years without requiring an entire resurfacing.

As this is the case it is obvious that the building of macadam roads, dirt roads or roads similarly constructed, which have no continued resistance against the high speed automobile traffic, will have to be discontinued or changed to a sufficient extent to form a surface which will withstand the shearing and suction effect without giving way in such a short time under the strain.

The dust evil which arises from the throwing up of the small particles forming the binder on a macadam road is naturally most prominent in the mind of the general public, but to the road engineer this evil is overshadowed by the loss of the small stone.

CHAPTER XII.

The Quarrel.

The beginning of the Crawling Stone line marked the first determined effort under President Bucks, while undertaking the reconstruction of the system for through traffic, to develop the rich local territory tributary to the mountain division. New policies in construction dated from the same period. Glover, with an enormous capital staked for the new undertakings, gave orders to push the building every month in the year, and for the first time in mountain railroad building winter was to be ignored. The older mountain men met the innovation as they met any departure from their traditions, with curiosity and distrust. On the other hand, the new and younger blood took hold with confidence, and when Glover called, "Yo, heave ho!" at headquarters, they bent themselves clear across the system for a hard pull together.

McCloud, resting the operating on the shoulders of his assistant Anderson, devoted himself wholly to forwarding the construction plans, and his first clash over winter road-building in the Rockies came with his own right-hand man, Mears. McCloud put in a switch below Piedmont, opened a material yard and began track laying toward the lower Crawling Stone valley, when Mears said it was time to stop work till spring. When McCloud told him he wanted track across the divide and into the lower valley by spring, Mears threw up his hands. But there was metal in the old man, and he was for orders all the time. He kept up a running fire of protests and forebodings about the danger of exposing men during the winter season, but stuck to his post.

Spring found the construction of the valley line well advanced, and the grades nearing the lands of the Dunning ranch. Right-of-way men had been working for months with Lance Dunning over the line and McCloud had been called frequently into consultation to adjust the surveys to objections raised by Dickie's cousin to the crossing of the ranch lands. Even when the proceedings had been closed, a strong current of discontent set from the managing head of the Stone ranch. Rumors of Lance Dunning's dissatisfaction often reached the railroad people. Vague talk of an extensive irrigation scheme planned by Sinclair for the Crawling Stone valley crept into the newspapers, and it was generally understood that Lance Dunning had expressed himself favorably to the enterprise.

Dickie gave slight heed to matters as weighty as these. She spent much of her time on horseback, with Jim under the saddle; and in Medicine Bend, where she rode with frequency, Marion's shop became her favorite abiding place. Dickie ordered hats until Marion's conscience rose and she practically refused to supply any more. But the spirited controversy on this point, as on many others—Dickie's haughtiness and Marion's restraint, quite unmoved by any show of displeasure—ended always in drawing the two closer to each other.

One March afternoon, coming home from Medicine Bend, she saw at some distance before her a party of men on horseback. She was riding a trail leading from the pass road that followed the hills, and the party was coming up the bridge road from the lower ranch. Dickie had good eyes, and something unusual in the riding of the men was soon apparent to her. Losing and regaining sight of them at different turns in the trail, she made out, as she rode among the trees, that they were cowboys of her own ranch, and riding, under evident excitement, about a strange horseman. She recognized in the escort Stormy Gorman, the ferocious foreman of the ranch, and Denison and Jim Baugh, two of the most reckless of the men. These three carried rifles slung across their pommels, and in front of them rode the stranger.

Fragments of the breakfast-table talk of the morning came back to Dickie's mind. The railroad graders were in the valley below the ranch, and she had heard her cousin say a good deal on a point she cared little about, as to where the railroad should cross the Stone ranch. Approaching the fork of the two roads toward which she and the cowboys were riding, she checked her horse in the shade of a cottonwood tree, and as the party rode up the draw she saw the horseman under surveillance. It was George McCloud.

Unluckily, as she caught a glimpse of him she was conscious that he was looking at her. She bent forward to hide a momentary confusion, spoke briskly to her horse, and rode out of sight. At Marion's she had carefully avoided him. Her precipitancy at their last meeting had seemed, on reflection, unfortunate. She felt that she must have appeared to him shockingly rude, and there was in her recollection of the scene an unconfessed impression that she had been to blame. Often when Marion spoke of him, which she did without the slightest reserve and with no reference as to whether Dick-sie liked it or not, it had been in Dickie's mind to bring up the subject of the disagreeable scene, hoping that Marion would suggest a way for making some kind of unembarrassing amends. But such opportunities had slipped away unimproved, and here was the new railroad superintendent, whom their bluff neighbor Sinclair never referred to other than as the college guy, being brought apparently as a prisoner to the Stone ranch.

Busied with her thoughts, Dickie rode slowly along the upper trails until a long detour brought her around the corrals and in at the back of the house. Throwing her lines to the ground, she alighted and through the back porch door made her way unobserved to her room. From the office across the big hall she heard men's voices in dispute, and she slipped into the dining room, where she could hear and might see without being seen. The office was filled with cowboys. Lance Dunning, standing with a cigar in his hand and one leg thrown over a corner of the table, was facing McCloud, who stood before him with his hand on a chair. Lance was speaking as Dickie looked into the room, and in curt tones: "My men were acting under my orders."

"You have no right to give such orders," McCloud said, distinctly, "nor to detain me, nor to obstruct our free passage along the right of way you have agreed to convey to us under our survey."

"Damn your survey! I never had a plat of any such survey. I don't recognize any such survey. And if your right-of-way men had ever said a word about crossing the creek above the flume I never would have given you a right of way at all."

"There were never but two lines run below the creek; after you raised objection I ran them both, and both were above the flume."

"Well, you can't put a grade there. I and some of my neighbors are going to dam up that basin, and the irrigation laws will protect our rights."

"I certainly can't put a grade in below the flume, and you refuse to talk about our crossing above it."

"I certainly do."

"Why not let us cross where we are, and run a new level for your ditch that will put the flume higher up?"

"You will have to cross below the flume where it stands, or you won't cross the ranch at all."

McCloud was silent for a moment. "I am using a supported grade, there for eight miles to get over the hill within a three-tenths limit. I can't drop back there. We might as well not build at all if we can't hold our grade, whereas it would be very simple to run a new line for your ditch, and my engineers will do it for you without a dollar of expense to you, Mr. Dunning."

Lance Dunning waved his hand as an ultimatum. "Cross where I tell you to cross, or keep off the Stone ranch. Is that English?"

"It certainly is. But in matter of fact we must cross on the survey agreed on in the contract for a right-of-way deed."

"I don't recognize any contract obtained under false representations."

"Do you accuse me of false representations?"

Lance Dunning flipped the ash from his cigar. "Who are you?"

"I am just a plain, every-day civil engineer, but you must not talk false representations in any contract drawn under my hand."

"I am talking facts. Whispering Smith may have rigged the joker—I don't know. Whoever rigged it, it has been rigged all right."

"Any charge against Whispering Smith is a charge against me. He is not here to defend himself, but he needs no defense. You have charged me already with misleading surveys. I was telephoned for this morning to come over to see why you had held up our work, and your men cover me with rifles while I am riding on a public road."

"You have been warned, or your men have, to keep off this ranch. Your man Stevens cut our wires this morning—"

"As he had a perfect right to do on our right of way."

"If you think so, stranger, go ahead again!"

"Oh, no! We won't have civil war—not right away, at least. And if you and your men have threatened and browbeaten me enough for to-day, I will go."

"Don't set foot on the Stone ranch again, and don't send any men here to trespass, mark you!"

"I mark you perfectly. I did not set foot willingly on your ranch to-day. I was dragged on it. Where the men are grading now, they will finish their work."

"No, they won't."

"What, would you drive us off land you have already deeded?"

"The first man that cuts our wires or orders them cut where they were strung yesterday will get into trouble."

"Then don't string any wires on land that belongs to us, for they will certainly come down if you do."

Lance Dunning turned in a passion. "I'll put a bullet through you if you touch a barb of Stone ranch wire!"

Stormy Gorman jumped forward with his hand covering the grip of his six-shooter. "Yes, damn you, and I'll put another!"

"Cousin Lance!" Dickie Dunning advanced swiftly into the room. "You are under our own roof, and you are wrong to talk in that way."

Her cousin stared at her. "Dickie, this is no place for you!"

"It is when my cousin is in danger of forgetting he is a gentleman."

"You are interfering with what you know nothing about!" exclaimed Lance, angrily.

"I know what is due to every one under this roof."

"Will you be good enough to leave this room?"

"Not if there is to be any shooting or threats of shooting that involve my cousin."

"Dickie, leave the room!"

There was a hush. The cowboys dropped back. Dickie stood motionless. She gave no sign in her manner that she heard the words, but she looked very steadily at her cousin.

"You forget yourself!" was all she said.

"I am master here!"

"Also my cousin," murmured Dickie, evenly.

"You don't understand this matter at all!" declared Lance Dunning, vehemently.

"Nothing could justify your language."

"Do you think I am going to allow this railroad company to ruin this ranch while I am responsible here? You have no business interfering, say!"

"I think I have."

"These matters are not of your affair!"

"Not of my affair?" The listeners stood riveted. McCloud felt himself swallowing, and took a step forward with an effort as Dickie advanced.

Her hair, loosened by her ride, spread low upon her head. She stood in her saddle habit, with her skirt still in hand. "Any affair that may lead my cousin into shooting is my affair. I make it mine. This is my father's roof. I neither know nor care anything about what led to this quarrel, but the quarrel is mine now. I will not allow my cousin to plunge into anything that may cost him his life or ruin it."

She turned suddenly, and her eyes fell on McCloud. "I am not willing to leave either myself or my cousin in a false position. I regret especially that Mr. McCloud should be brought into so unpleasant a scene, because he has already suffered rudeness at my own hands—"

McCloud flushed. He raised his hand slightly.

"And I am very sorry for it," added Dickie, before he could speak. Then, turning, she withdrew from the room.

"I am sure," said McCloud, slowly, as he spoke again to her cousin, "there need be no serious controversy over the right-of-way matter, Mr. Dunning. I certainly shall not precipitate any. Suppose you give me a chance to ride over the ground with you again and let us see whether we can't arrive at some conclusion?"

But Lance was angry, and nursed his wrath a long time.

ROOT JUICE IS COMING HERE

The Great Remedy is Proving a Wonderful Blessing to Many People.

If the many rumors that are circulating are true, Root Juice is destined to prove a great blessing to this community. The Root Juice will soon be here and it is hoped that the discovery will do the same good at this point as it is reported at other places. Many reports of wonderful cures the discovery has made are being circulated. A traveling man said to the reporter of this article: "While in Ft. Wayne I had occasion to go to the drug store, and while there a man came in and bought six bottles of Root Juice. While it was being wrapped up the man said, 'Every sick person in my neighborhood has used the juice, and it seems it has cured them all. I am the last person to be convinced.' After the man left, the druggist remarked, 'Root Juice is the greatest medicine on earth. People come in here and get a few bottles and in a few weeks they stop coming and when I see them they say they are cured.' When asked what it cures, he said, 'It seems to cure any trouble of the stomach, bowels, liver & kidneys. It is a wonderful remedy for indigestion and constipation, but it is equally as good for rheumatism and weak nervous people.' It is said that the drug store is usually crowded from the very first day at every point the scientist is induced to start a demonstration.

The great remedy will be in Wolf's drug store next Saturday. The Root Juice is $1 a bottle or three bottles for $2.50.

TO CHECK THE DRUG HABIT.

State Department Preparing Legislation—Plan Worldwide Crusade.

The drug trade of the United States, so far as it is habit forming, is to be taken in hand by the government. In co-operation with the various states the federal government intends to stop the great increase in the sales of those drugs that lower the physical and moral standing of the people. Opium, morphine, cocaine, chloral and similar distillations are to be placed under the severest inspection. The state department at Washington is now engaged in drawing up legislation to prevent the spread of the drug habit by eliminating the cause.

It is the intention of this government to make the crusade worldwide. Hamilton Wright, the American delegate on the opium commission which has been sitting in Peking, is drawing up plans for a conference of the principal governments at The Hague to take up the question of not only excluding opium (except that intended for medicinal purposes), but also the other deleterious drugs to which a large number of the people of all countries have turned as offering a surcease from the troubles of life and which sap the user's energies and abet crime.

It is the intention of the state department at the same time to bring about reform by placing the manufacture and importation of habit forming drugs under the inspection of some division of the government which will be held responsible for the results. It is now believed that the best custodian of the trust would be the bureau of internal revenue, but this question has not been settled. The federal government, however, will not rest with inhibiting the interchange of such drugs between states. It will place at the command of the health departments of the various states the information it gathers, so that local traffic in such drugs may be checked and ultimately eliminated.

HUNDRED YEARS OF PEACE.

Canada Wants a Celebration to Teach the Older Nations a Lesson.

The proposals of the association which is being formed in Ottawa, Canada, for the celebration of the hundred years of peace following the war of 1812 have been submitted to and approved by Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid Laurier. It is proposed that the celebration be national in character and form an object lesson in peace to the older nations.

The Dominion and United States governments and the provincial governments will be asked to contribute to finance the proposition, which will require more money than for the Quebec tercentenary.

HOLLOW TREE TELEGRAPH.

Explorer Solves Secret of Long Range Communication in Colombia.

Captain Whiffen recently arrived in London after years of exploration in southeastern Colombia. Among his discoveries is a secret system of telegraphy employed by the natives.

Hollow trees are selected of various thicknesses, which give out high or low notes when struck. The sound travels from thirty to forty miles.

No code is employed, but the natives recognize the words intended from the different musical notes.

Cement For Panama Canal Work.

An idea of what the Panama canal construction means to one industry in the United States may be gleaned from the fact that almost a million tons of cement will be used in the gigantic work. Shipments have already begun in steamers owned by the government which will carry about 8,000 tons at a trip. It is estimated that it will take about four years to deliver the 4,800,000 barrels of cement contracted for at the present rate of shipment.

Handsome Winter Home For Bryan.

William J. Bryan has let the contract for his winter residence on his 160 acre farm near Mission, Tex., according to a dispatch from Austin, Tex. It is said by those who have seen the plans that it will be the handsomest country home in Texas.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make no Mistake if You Follow This Rushville Citizens' Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys. If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptoms of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in Rushville. Follow the advice of a Rushville citizen and be cured yourself.

Mrs. B. W. Reynolds, 620 West Fifth street, Rushville, Ind., says "I had a constant backache that robbed me of energy and had a bad effect on my health. I was also subject to headaches and I rested poorly at night. Nothing I used brought relief and finally seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly endorsed by people who had taken them with benefit, I procured a supply from F. B. Johnson & Co., drug store. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, I have had no backache and I have felt better in every respect. This remedy has my hearty endorsement."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AN OUTRAGE ON WORKING MEN ARE WARLIKE

Altered Peonage Conditions Illinois Faces Situation That
Create Protests. Threatens Bloodshed.

CONGRESS MAY TAKE A HAND THE GOVERNOR URGED TO ACT

Gloriously Excessive Methods on the Part of Employment Agencies, as Revealed in the Schoenerville Investigation, Will Result in Official Recommendations For Passage of New Laws on the Subject—How Men Were Forced to Become Strikebreakers by Misrepresentation of a Cruel Character.

Pittsburg, Aug. 30.—Alleged peonage conditions at the Pressed Steel Car company's plant in Schoenerville is all probability will be brought to the attention of the United States congress when that body reconvenes in December.

Gloriously excessive methods on the part of Chicago and New York employment agencies toward strikebreakers, so forcibly brought to light in the public investigation will, it is authoritatively stated, result in strong official recommendations for the passage of a statute to act as a preventive of such actions in the future.

It is positively known that United States District Attorney John H. Jordan of the Pittsburg district, who has exerted himself to sift the peonage charges thoroughly, will suggest action of that sort in his report to the department of justice in Washington. "It is an outrage," declared Mr. Jordan in speaking of the employment agency methods of bringing imported workmen to Schoenerville. "Such a system of misrepresentation should not be permitted."

"These men, according to their testimony, came here not knowing where they were bound, nor what they were supposed to do. Neither did they know a strike was on. Now they are here, dissatisfied with the conditions and in many instances helpless to go anywhere."

The government investigators have yet to probe three days before all testimony has been offered. Witnesses will be examined privately during the present week and the report of the government investigators is expected to be completed by Saturday.

For the past twenty-four hours conditions at the plant of the Pressed Steel Car company have materially changed, the attitude of the striking employees and the authorities presaging little trouble for the beginning of the working week.

SERMON AT BALL PARK

Minneapolis Preacher Finds Big Congregation Attentive.

Minneapolis, Aug. 30.—On Sunday Rev. G. L. Morrill delivered a short address before the Minneapolis-Kansas City game at Nicollet park. Fully 7,000 fans were in attendance and that part of the stands which could hear the speaker listened intently while Mr. Morrill spoke. He was introduced by Umpire King and quiet reigned throughout the park during the service.

"The west," said Mr. Morrill, "is never content to be behind the east in any progressive movement and will not take a back seat when baseball religious services are considered. For myself I do not usually attend Sunday games because I go every day in the week, but there is no reason why others than myself should not enjoy the sport. Live and let live is a pretty good motto, and I believe that this crowd is largely made up of men who have but this one weekly chance to see the Minneapolis club fight for the pennant. I believe the only sin of Sunday baseball is for the home team to lose, so I say to the Minneapolis boys, 'Go in and climb a notch toward the flag!'"

Threat to Kill Preacher.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 30.—The Rev. Birney Hudson, leader of the reformers, who are working to stop Sunday baseball and the Sunday sale of liquor, has received a letter threatening to blow up the First Baptist church, of which he is pastor, and to assassinate him unless the reform movement is halted. He has turned the letter over to the police, who claim to have a clue to its sender.

Aldrich Off to Europe.

New York, Aug. 30.—United States Senator Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, chairman of the national monetary commission appointed by congress last year to improve the currency system of the United States, has sailed for Europe in the interests of the commission. His principal object is to complete arrangements heretofore made for information regarding the monetary system in Italy.

Farmer Shot From Ambush.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 30.—L. Johnson of Elliott county, was found dead in the highway near his home by his wife. He had been shot from ambush. An incipient feud is suspected as being the cause of the murder.

CONDITIONS ARE WARLIKE

Altered Peonage Conditions Illinois Faces Situation That
Create Protests. Threatens Bloodshed.

CONGRESS MAY TAKE A HAND THE GOVERNOR URGED TO ACT

In Order to Prevent Serious Trouble in the Disputed River Lands at East St. Louis and Peoria the Legislative Investigating Committee Urges Immediate State Action—Armed Forces Face Each Other Constantly and the People Express Determination to Maintain Their Ancient Fishing Rights.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 30.—The day the foundation for the attempt to divide the river by the state of some 30,000 acres of river, lake and dock lands of inestimable value, as well as the impending bloodshed and a battle between fishermen and land exploiting companies, the legislative made-lands investigation committee has sent the following telegram to Acting Governor John G. Oglesby and Attorney General Strad:

"In the interest of public peace and of the preservation of public rights, after an inspection of Spring and Thompson lakes, we feel that immediate action should be taken for the preservation of such rights as the people of the state of Illinois may have in these bodies of water, and in order that acts of violence, which are now impending, may not occur. We feel that it will be prejudicial both to the rights of the state and public peace longer to delay."

The legislators, aboard the state fish commission boat Illinois, commanded by State Fish Commissioner Nat Cohen, touched this town after a trip of inspection from St. Louis up the Mississippi and Illinois rivers. Astonishing and almost unbelievable revelations were made to the searchlighters.

The value of property that will be involved in the state's claims easily runs into the millions of dollars. Practically the entire water front, extending all of ten miles above, below and through East St. Louis, and running back in some places two miles, is to be claimed by the state. This tract alone embraces some 15,000 acres, including all the ferry and railroad terminal trusts property through the St. Louis district.

If disclosures made to the committee can be substantiated, for fifty years it will be shown that the commonwealth of Illinois has been systematically robbed by the squatter method on a scale so gigantic as almost to pass belief. How it happens that this has escaped general public attention thus far also is passing strange, for a state of armed siege exists in some sections, with bloodshed almost sure to ensue at once unless quick and drastic action is taken by the state authorities.

Feasting runs high all along the river for a hundred miles and more. Power boats are bristling arsenals hidden in the caves, lagoons, sloughs and bayous. Skulking forms creep over the embankment to watch the movements of armed guards employed by the private hunting and fishing clubs and the land exploiting companies. On these men's faces is the grim determination to protect their public fishing grounds against the encroachments of Indiana and Cincinnati millionaires, and do it with powder and ball if it becomes necessary.

So intense and bitter has been the struggle that has been going on for years, and is now reaching the battle stage, that for miles over the greatest fish propagating grounds in the world trees and driftwood are plastered with United States court injunctions warning the people of Illinois to keep away from these beautiful waters enjoyed so many years by the citizens of Illinois.

NEW MALADY GROWING

Many Cases of Pellagra Reported in the State of Illinois.

Washington, Aug. 30.—More than fifty cases of pellagra, with fifty additional in the state of recovery and fifty more, under suspicion at Peoria (Ill.) state hospital, is the word that comes to the War Department from Capt. Joseph E. Siler of the army medical corps, who was sent to Peoria at the request of the hospital officials to investigate the outbreak.

Capt. Siler thinks the conditions at Peoria are deserving of special bacteriological study. He is of the opinion, according to the report, that the disease has long prevailed, not only at the Peoria hospital, but throughout Illinois, as well as throughout the growing states of the west.

Race Caused Two Deaths.

New York, Aug. 30.—Laurent Grosse, driver of the Stearns car, who was injured in the 24-hour automobile race at the Brighton Beach motor drome Friday night, died Sunday. Leonard Cole, his mechanic, was instantly killed in the accident.

Edward H. Harriman is reported to be improving in his mountain home at Arden, N. Y.

BLAMES SPEEDWAY FOR 5 FATALITIES

Coroner Says Track Was in Poor Condition.

Indianapolis, Aug. 30.—In the case of the second three deaths at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway resulting from the fact that the National car driven by Merz left the track, Coroner Blackwell has rendered his verdict. He blamed the Speedway for the accident. A similar verdict in the first two deaths had been previously rendered.

The last cases passed upon were those of Claude Kellum, mechanic in the National machine, and John West and Homer Jouliff, spectators. He blamed the Speedway machine because it permitted racing on the track in its condition at the time of the races, and blamed the condition of the track for the bursting of the National tire, this being the immediate cause of the three deaths covered in the verdict.

WILL MARKER ARRESTED

Former Cashier of Tipton Bank Held to Answer.

Tipton, Ind., Aug. 30.—Hardly a ripple of surprise was caused here by the arrest of William H. Marker, former cashier, and E. W. Shirk, president of the First National bank.

Both of the arrests have been anticipated since the bank reopened for business. They would have been made before but for the desire on the part of the federal authorities to give the stockholders a chance to reorganize, to make good the shortage of $135,000 and reopen.

The apprehension of the officials of the bank that a run would follow the news of the arrest of President Shirk was made public without cause. There were few requests for money and the business proceeded without incident. Bank Examiner Weir did much to reassure confidence in making a statement that the bank was all right and the arrests of Shirk and Marker would have no effect on the depositors.

Special Examiner Bennett and Mr. Weir are completing another examination of the books and the latter has been assigned to the work of collecting and formulating the evidence to be used against the two Markers and E. W. Shirk at the coming session of the federal grand jury. He will likely be in Tipton for the next four weeks.

William H. Marker had been apprised of the fact that he would be arrested and had an ample number of bondsmen ready. Tipton people were surprised on learning that the charge on which Marker had been arrested was making false entries in the report to the controller of the currency. It was generally believed when it was known that the officers would be here that the offense charged would be a more serious one. The promptness with which the required bondsmen were obtained again proved that the Markers have many friends in the city and county.

Curtiss King of the Air.

Rheims, Aug. 30.—The International Cup of Aviation, known as the Gordon Bennett trophy, was won by Glenn H. Curtiss, the American aviator, in the fastest aerial journey of twenty kilometres (12.42 miles) ever accomplished by man. His time, 15 minutes 50.35 seconds, was only 5.35 seconds faster than that made by Bleriot over the same course.

FINDS KITCHEN ROOF IS BURNING

Mrs. J. N. Maple Discovers Fire in Time to Save the House From Destruction.

CALLS MEN WORKING NEAR

When Mrs. J. N. Maple, living in Circleville stepped out into her back yard about 8 o'clock this morning she saw the roof of the kitchen blazing. She called to men working at the barn and they quickly extinguished the blaze. A large hole was burned in the roof and but for the timely discovery the house would probably have been in ashes. It is supposed that the fire started from a spark from the chimney.

Harry Ford, who was injured in alighting from a car last week, is slightly improved.

ROMANCE STARTED BEHIND FOOTLIGHTS

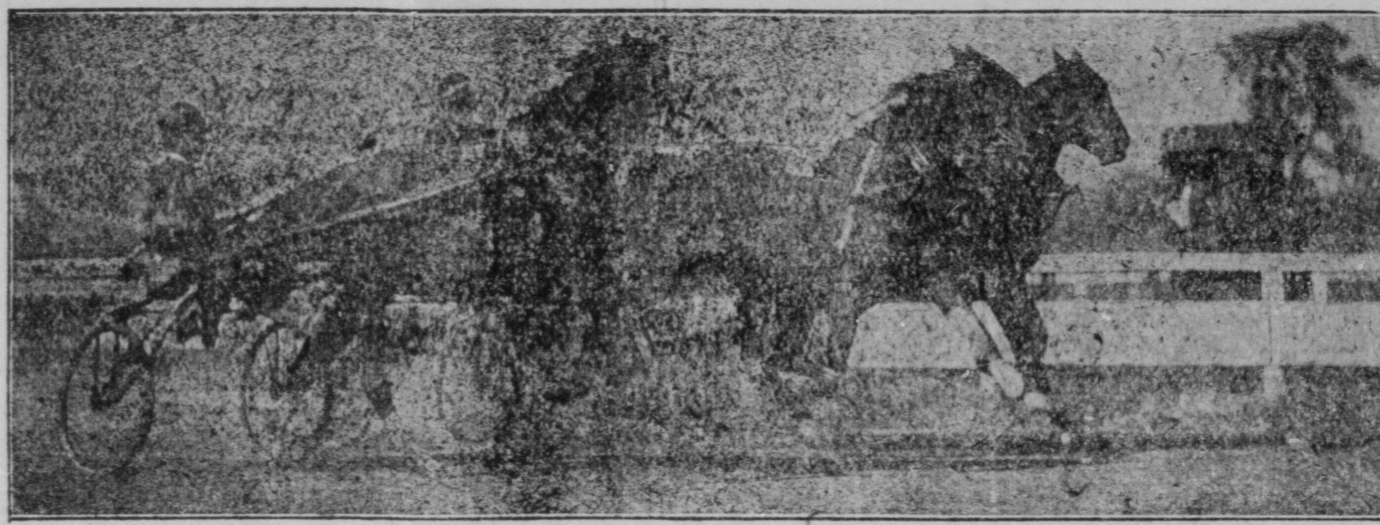

Miss Carrie Ethelyn Booth and Orus Butterfield Married in Clerk's Office Today.

FIRST MEETING ON THE STAGE

A romance of the footlights resulted in the marriage of Mr. Orus Butterfield and Miss Carrie Ethelyn Booth in the county clerk's office today. The groom is a resident of Morgan county and is thirty-four years of age, while the bride is only twenty-two. They met on the stage, their occupation being the same and bringing them together. Dr. V. W. Tevis performed the ceremony.

RUMOR WITHOUT ANY FOUNDATION

Secretary of Shelby County Fair Says Quarantine is Absolutely False.

SAY IT IS STARTED PURPOSELY

E. R. McDaniel, secretary of the Shelby County Fair Association, denies the story to the effect that the fair there has been called off on account of the city being under quarantine. He said that the rumor had evidently been started with malicious intent and was without foundation. Many stand men and show managers here had intended to go to Shelbyville this week, but went elsewhere, because they heard that the fair had been postponed.
